

IRVINO V. DORLAND, the subject of this sketch and the present Treasurer and Collector of the Township, was born in March, 1859, in Dutchess Co., N. Y. His family removed to Hastings on the Hudson when he was seven years old, and he remained there until 1882 when they moved to New York City. In February, 1884, Mr. Dorland moved to Arlington and engaged in the wholesale grain business with a firm doing business on the Produce Exchange. In 1888 Mr. Dorland started in his own behalf in the Insurance business, and in 1891 was elected Township Treasurer and Collector, which position he now holds. During last year Mr. Dorland was Commodore of the American Canoe Assn., and is ever prominent in athletic sports and pastimes, and is generally highly esteemed by all the members of the Canoe Association. He is an exempt fireman in both New York and New Jersey, and has been President of the Equity Building and Loan Association since 1892. Mr. Dorland is an agreeable gentleman of great executive ability, and is a man who is personally esteemed by all who come in contact with him.

Charles E. Lindblom, Painter and Decorator, Paperhanging, Kalsomining and Glazing, Midland Avenue, second door from Forest Street—Mr. Charles E. Lindblom was born in Sweden, raised and educated there, came to the United States in 1871, and after working at his trade in Jersey City and other places in the State finally settled in Arlington, now a period of five years, where he has conducted his business, so satisfying himself and his numerous customers that there are few who can lay claim to the pleasure which he now feels at his success. He has just moved his business from Oakwood Avenue and Elm Street to the above address where he has added to his workshop a handsome paint store and intends to carry a full line of painter's supplies, such as enamel, ready mixed paints, glass and the latest designs in wall papers. It is needless to say that this store is going to be a success for it will fill a want at the right time, and as Arlington is growing very fast, this store conducted under the supervision of a gentleman with Mr. Lindblom's enterprise and foresight, is certain to grow, too. He is prepared to cheerfully estimate on all classes of work in his line and gives advice, and those who like to deal with a live, painstaking tradesman will find in Mr. Lindblom

the height of their expectations. The above engraving will be readily recognized by many as it shows another of Arlington's representative business men in the person of Mr. Chas. L. Lindblom, the subject of the above sketch.
